

Big Improvement In Radio Reception

NOISE GREATLY REDUCED

In just about a week, more than half the noises which have plagued Grayling radio listeners for years have been eliminated. Since the survey commenced on July 8th, inspectors have visited about one hundred places, checked 550 motors, signs and other electrical appliances and found 210 radiating interferences. Of these, about 150 of the worst offenders have been silenced, reducing the average noise level more than 70%.

The new automatic telephone exchange was producing more interference, reaching all over the city, than any other one source. Drink mixers at soda fountains, electric drills at garages and neon signs followed in the order named, even the press upon which this is printed was doing its share toward sending radio listeners to the booby hatch.

The public in general has co-operated almost one hundred percent but it is quite evident that the survey cannot be continued long enough to locate every interfering device, therefore you are asked to further cooperate by seeing that any appliance you know or suspect of causing radio noise is checked and silenced. The permanent success of this campaign to improve reception requires the silencing of all noisy apparatus—not just part of it.

The City has done its part—please do yours. You may take any noisy appliance to Middleton Radio Service at City Park where it will be silenced at a nominal cost for filters, or they will check it and tell you how to silence it yourself.

Eaton Starts An Active Campaign

LOSES NO TIME IN FIGHT TO WIN REPUBLICAN NOMINATION

Following announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, Elton R. Eaton, state representative from Plymouth, has lost no time in starting an energetic campaign throughout the state. Through the cooperation of a group of young Republicans his petitions have already been filled. Among the thousands of Republicans contacted by them there was found enthusiastic approval of his candidacy.

Elton R. Eaton

His entrance into this contest was the result of the decision of Senator Arthur Vandenberg to file again for the Republican nomination for United States senator.

"The foreign situation has become so grave," says Eaton, "that nothing should take place to disturb the situation in Washington at this time. It would be unwise indeed to compel Senator Vandenberg to leave his senate work and devote his time to a primary contest while our country faces one of its most serious problems since the beginning of our national existence and while the people are demanding that congress remain in session." Michigan approves wholeheartedly of Eaton's views on this matter.

The Plymouth representative has an outstanding record in Lansing. He possesses a thorough knowledge of legislative procedure and knows about state problems. He is one of the hard-core workers to ever serve in the legislature.

It is his plan, if nominated and elected lieutenant governor, to give his full time to the duties of the office, something that has never been done by any person holding that position.

Carrie Jorgenson Dies In St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Carrie Jorgenson of Grayling entered into rest at the home of her sister in St. Louis, Mo., at 31 Windermere Place, July 13th, 1940.

She was born in Shelby county, Illinois, January 6th, 1867, the eldest of six children of the late Neils P. and Margrethe Jorgenson, who came to the U. S. A. from Denmark. Her parents took their family to Denmark to visit their parents in 1874. In 1884 they moved to Clay county, Ill., near Sailor Springs. In 1900 Miss Jorgenson went to Grayling and had made her home here ever since.

Surviving are her sister Dorothea E. Williams, Marshall Jorgenson, of Noble, Ill., F. P. Jorgenson of Toledo, Walmer Jorgenson of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Adler Jorgenson, widow of the late Adler Jorgenson, also nieces and nephews.

She was a good neighbor and faithful friend. Her sense of duty was strong. Indicative of her fine helpful character is the tribute written to her some years ago by her sister as follows:

A spirit sweet, serene and calm,
A heart of love and helpfulness,
A blessing everywhere you go.
I wonder, do you know
Of whom I speak this earnest praise?

The depth and breadth I can't express
But those who know and love you best

Will understand what I would say
And thus complete this simple lay.

CCC Boys Enrolled, Not Enlisted

Fears of parents that sons who are enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps may be transferred automatically into the nation's armed forces if a military emergency presents itself are unfounded in the opinion of George Young, director of work activities for Michigan state forest CCC camps. Commenting today, he said:

"Under existing conditions, CCC boys are enrolled, not enlisted. It appears that the non-combatant training that is frequently mentioned nowadays will be nothing more than a continuation of the training that CCC boys have been getting for the past seven years, only on a more intensified basis. Training in equipment operation and maintenance, skill in handling and caring for the common tools of workmanship cooking and baking, are important among the several types of enrollee training.

"Any boy between the ages of 17 and 23½ years, who is unmarried, not on probation or parole, who can pass the physical and mental examination, and who wants a job, may apply for enrollment. The relief administrator of each county will accept applications until July 31."

Young points out that boys under 21 cannot be inducted into the nation's armed forces without the consent of their parents.

Kiwanis Club Notes

Ladies night, with a special guest speaker was the program for this week's meeting of the Kiwanis club. This was held at Shoppenagons Inn Wednesday night. The guest speaker was Merle S. Ward, president of the Ferris Institute, Big Rapids. Mr. Ward is a forceful and interesting talker. Development of the human race from the beginning of time when men learned to articulate, form words, sentences, language, make use of natural resources, and other interesting human science were fluently discussed by the speaker.

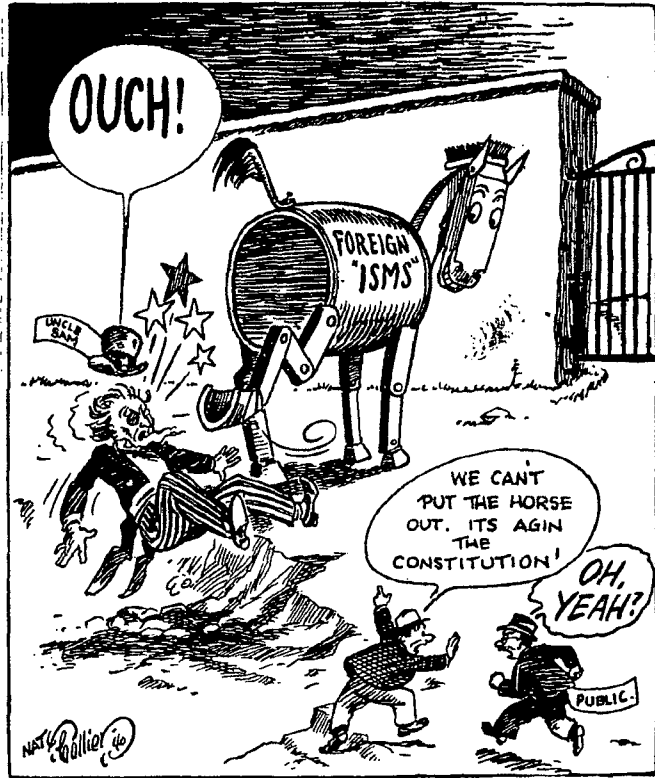

following telegram to Editor Eaton a few days ago:

"Washington, D. C.

"Hon. Elton R. Eaton:

"I am deeply grateful to you for your generous message and for your helpful and unselfish attitude toward the Republican Senatorial primary. I only hope that I may continue to merit your confidence and approval and that I may justify the Michigan faith which you are good enough to express. Your message is typical not only of your friendship but of your attitude toward your own public responsibilities. I wish you many more years of effective activity in the public service in whatever position you may occupy. Please accept my warmest personal greetings."

HE WHO GETS KICKED

Six Parties On Ballot At Nov. Election

SIX FORMER PARTIES FAIL TO QUALIFY FOR PLACE.

Instead of having candidates from ten parties, as at the 1938 election, from which to choose, voters will have to confine their choices to only six parties this year. The parties qualifying by votes or petitions for places on the Michigan ballot this year and the order in which they will appear are Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Socialist-Labor, Prohibition and Communist.

The American, Commonwealth, Protestant-United, Square Deal, Constitutional Democratic and American parties will not appear this year. The Prohibition and Communist parties had no tickets under their own names on the 1938 ballot. The Prohibition party marched under the Commonwealth banner and the Communists used their strength in left-wing voting.

NEW SALES TAX LICENSE STICKERS

Michigan merchants' windows will soon be displaying the new silver and black 1940-41 sales tax license stickers. To facilitate this, the mailing division of the State Board of Tax Administration in Lansing is being geared up for the release of over 94,000 sales tax books of return blanks and licenses to be mailed to all sales tax licensees in Michigan the week of July 29. An estimated mailing cost of $3,000 will be Uncle Sam's fee for handling the 12 ton mailing of the new books and licenses.

Blueberries Promise Big Crop, Fine Quality

Besides supporting a small summer industry of commercial pickers, the blueberries of northern Michigan are proving an attraction for tourists. On thousands of acres of state land, they may be had for the picking.

This season production is spotty, but where the bushes escaped hard spring frosts the crop is abundant and the berries are of a good size, because of plentiful rainfall. Cool weather of spring and early summer has delayed their ripening.

Since stripping the bushes with mechanical devices is prohibited, the average tourist can do about as well as some more experienced pickers. Many pickers gather just enough for their own use, for pies, puddings, and preserving.

To the usual diversions of fishing, swimming and sightseeing, many visitors on their northern Michigan tours are adding the fun of picking blueberries along the highways and at camping spots, and enjoying serving them fresh.

Man Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Martin Verschoor, age 59, passed away at the home of Mrs. Matilda Rainbow Wednesday morning at 10:30, of a heart attack. He had been down town that morning, and upon returning home said he was going to his room to lie down a while, where Mrs. Rainbow found him some time later.

Mr. Verschoor had been a salesman for Marshall Fields in Chicago up to about nine years ago when he came to Mancelona and was employed in the laboratory of the Antrim Iron Company. Last April he purchased the old Pond house on U. S. 27 from Amos Hunter. He then rented it to Mrs. Rainbow and had a room there. A year ago Wednesday Mr. Verschoor suffered a heart attack and had been in the care of a physician previous to his coming to Grayling.

The remains were at the Grayling Funeral Home until Wednesday afternoon when he was removed to Grand Rapids for burial.

Mr. Verschoor made many friends in Grayling during his short stay here. He was a very pleasing person to meet and made friends readily. He leaves to mourn his passing three sisters, two of whom live in Grand Rapids and one in Detroit.

Change Made In Buying Half Year Plates

CHANGE MADE IN BUYING HALF YEAR PLATES

Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, today warned car owners that when they buy full year license plates to replace half plates expiring August 31st, they must destroy the half plates.

"The half plates are good until August 31st," said Mr. Kelly, "and unless destroyed might fall into improper hands and be used illegally on other cars."

An earlier ruling by the department required full year plate purchasers to surrender half year plates to the department, but due to inconvenience to great numbers of persons who neglected to bring old plates with them the rule has been modified.

Instead, purchasers are being warned that failure to destroy old plates might cause them trouble should the tags fall into the hands of criminals.

Full year plates at half price were placed on sale July 10th.

PRE-NUPTIAL SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Mrs. A. E. Mason of Detroit was hostess at her Lake Margrethe summer home at luncheon and a kitchen shower Saturday afternoon for Miss Jayne Keyport whose marriage will take place in early September.

The honor guest, with others, was seated at a long table in the dining room centered with an arrangement of white stock in a crystal bowl and with miniature brides and grooms placed near to complete the ensemble. Small tables were scattered through the living rooms and porch at which the other guests were served.

Following the luncheon cleverly wrapped packages containing a variety of kitchen utensils from those present were presented to Miss Keyport by Mrs. Donald Ballman of Midland and Miss Georgiana Olson.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing bridge at which Mrs. Benjamin Jerome of Pontiac held the high score.

TOWNSEND PICNIC AT STANDISH JULY 21

Predictions of a huge crowd numbering several thousand people are made by officials in charge of the big Townsend picnic and rally to be staged at the Standish fairgrounds Sunday, July 21. This is an annual affair held by the Tenth Congressional District Townsend clubs. The event was first advertised to be staged at Gladwin State Park, but was changed a week ago to Standish because of inadequate parking space at the State Park. Keep this change in mind in making your plans to attend the picnic.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the Townsend plan and after whom the clubs are named, will be there in person to give the main address of the day.

The picnic will get under way at 10:00 o'clock in the morning and will continue until 10:00 in the evening.

Michigan Mirror

Non-Partisan News Letter

By GENE ALLEMAN

Lansing—The "I told you so" prophets are still busy. Way back before the Republican party convened at Philadelphia, a few observers of public opinion were daring to raise their voices in advocacy of Wendell L. Willkie for the Republican nomination for president. They did so on the basis of several interesting assumptions. These include the following:

1. The war crisis demanded a man of mature judgment and practical experience who had demonstrated ability to get things done.

2. The party desperately needed a man with personality who could match the famous Roosevelt fire-side magnetism.

3. The public was fed up on political ballyhoo and bosses. Old guardism would invite defeat.

4. If the voter was willing to cross party lines, the party should be willing to cross them for its nominee.

Willkie, a life-long Democrat until four years ago, is proof to these prophets that political changes of a revolutionary kind are taking place in the United States.

Do they point the way to similar changes in Michigan? Let us examine the arguments.

Phenomenon

In these fast-moving blitzkrieg days, the nomination of Willkie has been widely proclaimed to be a phenomenon of first magnitude. Out of the unknown the Hoosier comet suddenly appeared crossing our political skies.

To the amazement of old timers, the Willkie candidacy was in utter contradiction and defiance of most established rules of politics.

The utility president declined to accept contributions, mailing back checks to donors. He spent only around $4,000 of his own funds. His hotel reservation for a headquarters was for two rooms. He declined to make deals with party bosses. He spoke frankly in favor of aiding the Allies with supplies at a time when Republican non-interventionists were labeling the Democrats as having a "war party."

Where some campaign promoters deemed it to be traditionally expedient to tempt delegates with free liquor at lavishly equipped bars, the Willkie technique scorned the device.

Was the Willkie abandon and disregard for conventional customs an astute analysis of the 1940 public mind? Here is what happened:

One by one the favorite sons—Dewey, Taft and Vandenberg—fell by the wayside before this strange combination of social forces. The alliterative Wendell L. Willkie, a college radical in his Indiana youth and a New Dealer from 1932 to 1936, became the 1940 nominee of the Republican party! Little wonder that commentators and writers have written profusely since the convention.

Parallel in Michigan?

That a parallel exists in Michigan public opinion is a contention advanced by many independent-thinking Republicans today.

We present it solely as speculation in keeping with our policy of non-partisan writing.

Whether the parallel is true or untrue is for history to decide. The national and state situations are not exactly the same. In the first place, a Democrat occupies the White House; a Republican is in Michigan's capitol executive office. Secondly, war responsibility is largely national. Wars are fought from Washington, not from Lansing.

Then where does the "parallel" begin?

The argument goes like this: The Willkie disregard for state bosses and ballot ballyhoo is a sign that Michigan voters want leaders who are "free" and "independent" from alliances and commitments.

In these days of labels, few voters will disagree with "free" and "independent" as being desirable qualifications for any public official. The difference arises when we try to define what we say.

Independents

Among the present Republican candidates in Michigan who are definitely known to be "anti-boss" independents are Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth, running for lieutenant governor; O. L. Smith of Detroit, candidate for governor, and James Thomson of Jackson, aspirant for lieutenant governor.

The other candidates may be entitled also to this label, but so far they have not openly spurned assistance which Michigan's new national party committee-man, Frank D. McKay of Grand Rapids, might be able to give them. Hence their position is not a matter of record. Such is our distinction.

In this latter classification are such candidates as Arthur Vandenberg, Luren D. Dickinson, Miller Dunckel and Felix Flynn. They are party organization leaders in the accepted sense.

To jump to the conclusion that Willkie's nomination is proof of new trend in Michigan politics and hence that Michigan voters are going to upset the proverbial applecart at the September primary are comforting thoughts, of course, to the supporters of Messrs. Eaton, Smith and Thomson.

Reminders

But then as you think you have everything nicely figured out, several disturbing reminders arise. You recall it was the Michigan delegation, officially led by McKay, which spectacularly accelerated the Willkie landslide in the sixth ballot.

However, despite what prophets may say and what analysts may deduce on paper, the only answer will come from the primary and convention in September. We do not venture even a surmise as to the outcome.

AL WEBER SAYS VOTE NO

It will be a pretty good and safe plan to decide with yourself right now to vote NO on every ballot that is handed you at the polls this fall, every ballot on which you are to register a Yes or No vote. The civil service question is one that piles a lot of extra cost on the tax payer and gives him nothing in return but political headaches. Civil service cannot be honestly and economically operated politically. The dental bill is a question between dentists, one that you best keep out of. Your contact with the dentist will come soon enough, and any change in the present laws will simply cost you more when your time does come to go to the dentist. Too many of our trades and professions are tied up with laws of their making, laws that tend to regiment the thing in the hands of a few. To make jobs for inspectors, snoops and other expensive agencies that the common public pays for in the end. God knows we are involved in enough laws now that deprive us of the right to do business as we previously enjoyed and we have made that possible by voting yes instead of No. Therefore, turn over a new leaf, and on that leaf have printed in blazing letters the word NO.—Cheboygan Observer.

and how is it used in making beer and ale?

BARLEY

Answer: Brewers' malt is barley that has had its starches modified. The barley is first permitted to "sprout" by the addition of moisture. At the right instant, the growth is checked by heat and the sprouts are removed.

What remains is malt... the essential base of all good beer and ale.

Every step in the brewing of good beer and ale has been taught by centuries of experience. Today, amazingly expert brewers — using only the purest ingredients — make beer and ale the mild, tasty, wholesome beverages that they are.

Now the brewing industry is taking action to keep the retailing of beer as wholesome as beer itself. A plan to eliminate abuses is already in effect in a number of states. It is being extended. Ask us for an interesting free booklet.

fact, seemed to render them more readily victims to infections. Colds and sore throats were especially common in those children whose parents had a history of asthma or hayfever. This group also showed a marked tendency to deafness and running ears, respiratory infections and pneumonia, indicating that the allergic child should have early and special consideration.

In general, it may be said that about 25 percent of all children must have tonsils removed in order to have normal health, while 75 percent will doubtless enjoy better health if allowed to retain their tonsils.

Lillian Gish, Dancer,
Started With Bernhardt

Lillian Gish—dancer. That would be surprising billing, indeed, for the actress who has long been accounted an international dramatic star of stage and screen.

Yet it was as a dancer that the fragile beauty made her debut on Broadway. And with Sarah Bernhardt, at that.

Miss Gish was but seven at the time, and Sarah was well past 60, though tall and striking in appearance.

"How thrilled I was," Miss Gish recalls. "Bernhardt selected me for the part of the child dancer after visiting a dancing school I attended."

"Each night as she stood in the wings, preparing to make her entrance, Bernhardt would pat me on the head. It became quite a little rite between us, and I thought of it suddenly the other night for the first time in years when I found myself patting little Harlan Stone on the head as we stood in the wings before the first act curtain of 'Life With Father.'"

Looking Back to Kitty Hawk Whether Orville and Wilbur Wright, who realized Roger Bacon's prophecy and Leonardo da Vinci's dream, ever foresaw the sky full of Messerschmitts, Heinkels, Spitfires, Airacobras and the like—is a question that some expert in the short history of aviation may answer if he can. If they did the world today possibly wishes they had folded their tents at Kitty Hawk and bicycled back to Dayton before 10 o'clock on the morning of December 17, 1903.

Be that as it may, it is certain that they did not foresee an encyclopedia of the airplane of more than 1,400 pages less than 37 years after their world-shaking flight. Yet here it is today, an item at least half as bulky as an unabridged dictionary, and named "Aerosphere: 1939." The author and editor is Glenn D. Angle of Detroit, who is known as an engine designer and as the author of various books and many technical articles relating to airplane engines. He was formerly a professor at the Lawrence Institute of Technology, and is now connected with the Briggs Manufacturing company.

These are some of the principal indications for removal of the tonsils. Under such conditions, there is no alternative. But according to best estimates, probably no more than one child in five should undergo the operation while at least two in five now are operated upon usually on the insistence of parents who consider such procedure to be harmless and probably beneficial.

One Buffalo, New York physician who has studied the cases of 4,400 children over a ten-year period, half of the number retaining their tonsils and half losing them, has arrived at other conclusions. He found that the question did reduce the incidence to throat trouble especially during the first three years that followed. But it had no effect on those susceptible to colds and, in Currently, however there is being some doubt expressed as to whether the doctors have not oversold tonsillectomies. Proof is accumulating that the tonsils are not vestigial organs, relics of some stage in man's evolution from lower forms of life, but have a definite function to perform—probably as filters or traps for organisms finding their way into the upper respiratory tract. As long as they continue to perform this function, they should remain undisturbed.

When, however, the tonsils, though healthy, are so large as to interfere with swallowing and breathing or when they are chronically infected, serving to incubate and distribute disease germs throughout the system, there should be no question as to their removal. Children whose tonsils and adenoids have been taken out do not seem to have as many ear infections during winter months. Enlargement of the neck glands, a common ailment of childhood, appears less frequently after tonsillectomy. Other children, suffering from impaired nutrition and retarded growth, also benefit by an operation.

Day after day Granett has gone through this routine, trying out one chemical after another. During the summer he has stood in swamps under a boiling sun. In winter has been bitten by mosquitoes especially raised in the Rutgers laboratories at New Brunswick, N. J. Every one of the thirty-five kinds of mosquitoes found in New Jersey has had a chance to feed on him, Granett says. Along with them are many others of the 850 varieties that exist in different parts of the United States.

Granett's endurance has been finally rewarded. The laboratory staff reports that it has developed a lotion that withstands all tests better than any other. Not only does the substance offer protection against mosquitoes, but it keeps away gnats, sand fleas, black flies, deer flies, chiggers and similar pests. One application may last as long as three hours.

Lets 300,000 Mosquitoes Bite Him To Find Perfect Insect Repellent

Young Research Worker
on University Staff
Real "Iron" Man

WHILE other people try to keep away from mosquitoes during the summer months, Philip Granett, young "iron" man at Rutgers University, goes to a great deal of trouble to get them to bite him. He has endured more than 800,000 bites to help make it possible for other folks to escape insect annoyance.

Granett is one of a group of scientists at Rutgers who, under a grant from the National Carbon Company, are studying insect reactions to various chemicals. They have been working on this one problem for five years. As a result, they have already succeeded in making a repellent lotion that not only prevents mosquitoes from biting but keeps them at a distance.

Granett's job in this research has been that of a human guinea pig. He has tied out on himself the hundreds of chemical combinations produced by the laboratory staff to learn which solution would work best.

His method has been to take a sample of the chemical to be tested, stand in a mosquito bog, roll up sleeves and trousers, and apply a measured amount of the repellent to one arm and one leg. The other arm and leg have been left unprotected. Then the number of bites received on the untreated parts of his body were counted.

Bites were counted until Granett got this on the arm or leg having the repellent coating. As soon as that happened he noted the time that had elapsed since the test began, and the experiment was over. His purpose, of course, was to find a chemical combination that would extend the protection time as long as possible.

Combating Fifth Column On the Fourth

One year ago, on July 4, 1939, the Reading (Pa.) Times came out with an edition that was "censored" as it would be if published under a totalitarian government. The above is a reproduction of the front page. Nearly everything on the page had to be "crossed" out. The edition showed graphically what would be prohibited on the Fourth of July in any newspaper published under Communism, Fascism, or Nazism. In the language of today, the Fourth of July edition was aimed at Fifth column activities.

A Long Range Prediction

By JOHN ADAMS

On July 2, 1776, the delegates from the 13 colonies, meeting in Philadelphia, voted to separate from Britain. On that day, two days before the Declaration of Independence was signed, John Adams, later to become second President of the United States, wrote to his wife, Abigail:

"I am apt to believe that it (the day) will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward evermore."

"You will think me transported with enthusiasm but I am not. I am well aware of the toil and blood and treasure that it will cost to defend these States. Yet through all the gloom I can see the rays of ravishing light and glory. I can see that the end is more than worth all the means; and that posterity will triumph in that day's transaction, even though we should rue it, which I trust in God we shall not."

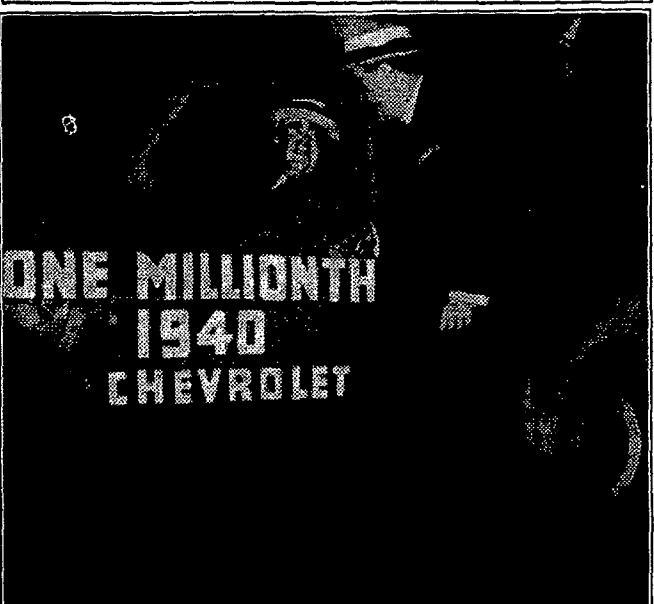

Adams predicted pretty well the nature of the celebration, although Abigail Adams, who had the unique distinction of being the wife of one President and the mother of another, John Adams, second President, was her husband, John Quincy Adams, sixth President, was her son.

he did think we would be celebrating the second of July instead of the Fourth.

Millionth 1940 Chevrolet to be Contest Award

Some conception of the demand for the 1940 Chevrolet may be gained from the fact that the one-millionth model of this year's production left the assembly line at Flint, Mich., on July 12. In celebration of the public appreciation reflected by this tremendous production record, M. E. Coyle, general manager of Chevrolet, shown (left) above with W. E. Holler, general sales manager, announced that the one-millionth 1940 car, together with a trip to the New York World's Fair, would be awarded in a contest which is open now and will close Aug. 31. Details are obtainable at any of the company's dealers.

SNAPSHOTS

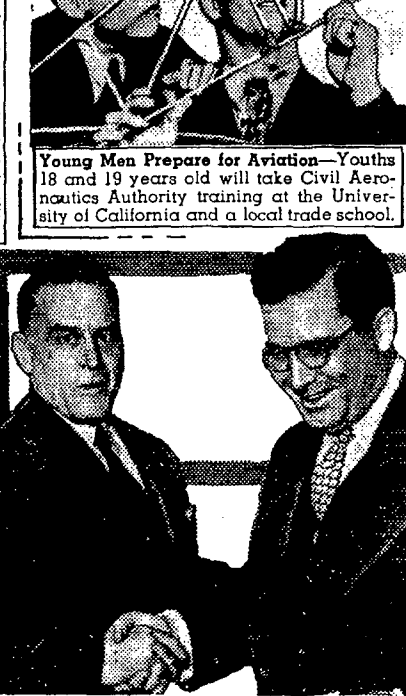

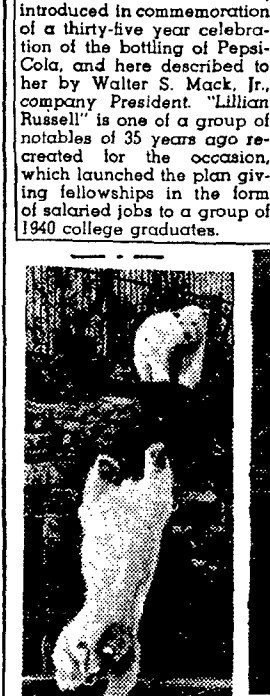

This model gasoline station is one of the many new and interesting features that have been added to the Petroleum Industry Exhibition at the N. Y. World's Fair, 1940. Other new features of the exhibit include a new type airplane, a model farmhouse, an actual oil derrick in operation, a model oil refinery, and an all-technicolor puppet motion picture.

At Celebration Launching Jobs for Youth Plan—"Lillian Russell" approves of the plan of the Walter Mack Job Awards for American Youth, introduced in commemoration of a thirty-five year celebration of the bottling of Pepsi-Cola, and here described to her by Walter S. Mack, Jr., company President. "Lillian Russell" is one of a group of notables of 35 years ago recreated for the occasion, which launched the plan giving fellowships in the form of salaried jobs to a group of 1940 college graduates.

Where the Willie Boom Began—The boom for Wendell L. Willkie for President, in the opinion of many political experts, started with his appearance on the radio program "Information Please," early last April. Above he is seen being congratulated by Roy Moore, President of Canada Dry, sponsors of the broadcast, on the fine showing he made with Mr. Fadiman's group of intellectuals.

Swimming Bear—Quebec—The Quebec Zoological Park's famous diving polar bears have felt the urge of Summer. Caesar was caught by the camera in mid-air as he performed for Fanny.

And So Would You—Judith Barrett, the pride of Venus, Texas, is called "Venus" by her proud neighbors. The lovely starlet will appear soon in a Hollywood production.

COTTONTAILS IN MICHIGAN

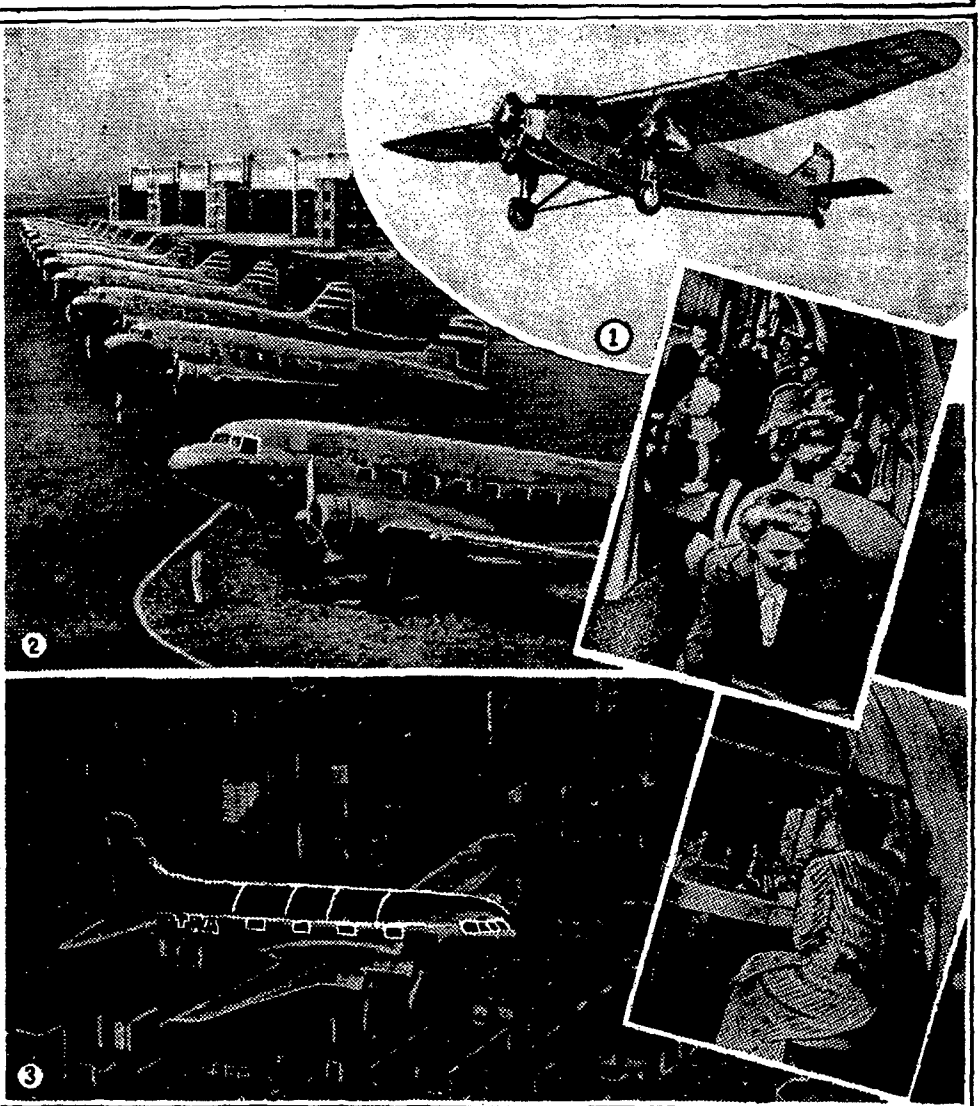

Just off the press and available now for distribution is "Cottontails in Michigan", a 112-page book on rabbits and rabbit hunting by Paul Hickie, mammalogist of the game division of the department of conservation. Problems in the management of Michigan's wild rabbits for maximum hunting are dealt with extensively. The text is documented, and plentifully illustrated.

11 YEARS OF WINGED PROGRESS

Eleven years ago this month, Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., inaugurated the first combination rail-air service between Los Angeles and New York. It took 48 hours to make the trip, passengers traveling by train at night, plane by day. On the eleventh anniversary—July 8—TWA started playing the same route with a fleet of new 33-passenger Boeing Stratoliners, first 4-engine planes to be used in domestic service. Flying time was reduced to 13 hours, 40 minutes, or 2 hours, 2 minutes faster than the previous fastest transport schedules. First photo shows one of the early-day TWA transports—a tri-motor Ford, which was replaced five years later by larger and faster bi-motor Douglas planes. No. 2 shows a fleet of these 21-passenger ships on review. The Stratoliner, shown in photo No. 3 flying over New York's west-side midtown section, is built to fly at high altitudes, cruises at 246 M.P.H. at 17,300 feet. Other views show the Stratoliner's luxurious interior.

WHY FIX THE ROOF THIS YEAR . . . WITH POTS AND PANS TO SPARE!

Silly, isn't it? Yes . . . but no more so than many excuses for putting off repairs offered by otherwise intelligent people. This year, this month, is the logical time to fix the roof, before the walls and ceilings are ruined.

We can put a new roof right over your old one, quickly and inexpensively. Each day you wait may increase the damages, and the ultimate cost of repairs. Damages to paper and plaster increase with each rain-storm.

Snappy Comeback
Why is a ship always referred to as "she"? Asked this question while addressing a gathering in Washington, D. C., Rear Admiral Chester W.
Nimitz replied, "Because it costs so much to keep one in paint and powder."

HELLO friends and howdy neighbor. "I hear England and France tell it as soon as Hitler gets thru mopping up over there" he's goin' 't learn his boys some new words 't that song Kate Smiths been singin', "God Blitz America, Our next Big Goal." Henry Ford sez he can make one thousan'd planes a day and Hitler sez, "I'd like to see him do it." A thirty day production could turn Hitler's Silverlinin' into a mighty dark cloud. He'd be like the story of the feller that tackled a wild cat bare handed and his pardner
sez, "Do you want me 't help you hold him?" He sez, "No but you might git in here and help me turn him loose." Germany's braggin' about their secret weapons. Heck every American is armed with a secret weapon that it took more'n a hundred years 't build. It's the fact we're all entitled 't life, liberty, an
the pursuit of happiness and armed with that weapon and a few modern guns it'll take more'n a Blitzkrieg
't enslave us. I'll be seein'
you on "Plantation Party"
Wednesday nite, I'm goin' 't th' wagon—these shoes are killin' me.

Washington, D. C.

NAZIS IN SOUTH AMERICA

WASHINGTON.—How vigorously Nazi Germany is trying to undermine the United States in Latin America is illustrated by a secret arms offer Hitler has just made to sell $80,000,000 worth of the latest military weapons to Brazil.

This would include tanks, artillery, flame-throwers, bombing planes and other modern devices
with which Germany prostrated France—all transported to a hemisphere where Pan-American nations have been relatively at peace for half a century.

Furthermore, Germany guarantees to deliver the goods almost immediately—via Italian ships.

It now looks very much as if Brazil
would accept the offer.

State department officials, together with Gen. George Marshall, dynamic U. S. chief of staff, are pulling every possible wire to prevent the purchase, but they are having a hard time. They are offering to sell American military equipment
instead. However, the Brazilians point out that because of cheap Nazi wages it would take $200,000,000 to buy the same material here where costs are much higher. Furthermore, Hitler is willing to accept coffee and other Brazilian surplus products in a barter deal. No real cash is involved.

Finally, the Brazilians say they bought some artillery from the United States recently, but it was World War stuff, and they had to spend $8,000 for repairs on each gun.
The German munitions, on the other hand, are virtually new.

General Marshall made a special flight to Brazil last year to get acquainted with the Brazilian army,
and later piloted General Goes Mon-teiro, Brazilian chief of staff, all over the United States. However, all this goodwill doesn't seem to count today. At least 40 per cent of the Brazilian army is reported to be pro-Nazi.

Note—Meanwhile the state department moves with tragic slowness to counteract Nazi activity in South America. Three years ago it set up a Cultural Relations bureau to cultivate Latin America, but its activity to date is minus zero.

Mining Panama Waters.
The navy may not admit it, but the secret reason for suddenly mining the waters around the Panama canal was the sighting of two submarines off the Pacific side of the canal.

They were sighted by an army
aviator, who was not able to distinguish their nationality. Since no
U. S. submarines were in that vicinity, the army and navy both were convinced they must be Japanese.
Obviously it would be difficult for German submarines to get into Pacific waters.

Another factor which has our navy command worried was that last week, while part of the Japanese fleet left for French Indo-China, another part left for an unnamed destination off into the Pacific.

It is suspected that the Japanese may be paying a visit to Chile, perhaps stopping en route at the Galapagos islands, which the United States is now trying to lease for a naval base to protect the Panama
canal.

Another reason is the fear that Hitler, having secured part of the French fleet, might pool forces with the Italians (after the end of the British campaign) and make a foray into American Atlantic waters. With part of the Japanese fleet simultaneously in Chilean waters, the problem of defense would be difficult.

Mechanical Sleuths.
Uniformed guards make nightly
inspection rounds in the big government buildings, but the real sentinels of the multi-million dollar structures are electrical machines. Elaborate automatic signal systems, equipped with buzzers, bells and lights instantly detect trouble and flash the alarm.

Most modern of the automatic watchdogs is the system in the stately Greco-Roman Federal Reserve
building on Constitution avenue. Its electrical controls make a written record of everything that goes on, with a special feature known as the "operator's delinquent system."

If the operator falls asleep or meets with an accident, red lights flash all over the building. The device also tattles on guards who fail to punch patrol boxes on time.

Note—All the guards and elevator operators in the Federal Reserve building are college students. They are the handsomest crew in Washington.

Political Chaff.
Latest aspirant to enter the congressional arena is squab Louis B.
Ward, editor of Father Coughlin's
Social Justice. This is Ward's second try. In 1936 he ran for a Democratic senatorial nomination
without success.

When pretty Japelle Johnson, five-year-old daughter of Rep. Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, was told that little brother Jed Jr. had sat on the President's knee, she shrugged her shoulders and replied airily, "Hm, that's nothing. I kissed him."

100,000 Will See 1940 Cascades Festival

Posed here is a group of Jackson girls on the series of three 4-ft. falls of the illuminated Cascades on the William & Matilda Sparks Foundation at Jackson, Michigan.

E. M. T. A. News Service
Jackson, Mich. . . . This city is getting ready to be "at home" to 100,000 visitors during the eight-day period, Aug. 10 to 17.

During those days the world-renowned cascades on scenic Sparks foundation at Jackson will become an irresistible magnet to persons from all over the nation when the gigantic, man-made waterfalls become the setting for the third annual Cascades Festival.

A super-colossal musical spectacle, the 1940 festival will be entirely different than its two predecessors. This year's production will be a large and brilliant revue packed to the fullest with variety entertainment. Magnificent costuming, glorious music, impressive

lighting and spectacular production effects highlight the plans for the '40 show. The festival is unfolded nightly on ten stages, six of which are floated over the various levels of the 550-foot long cascades while four huge stages are built alongside the structure on the beautifully landscaped terraces.

Features of the 1940 show include the cast of 1000, symphony orchestra of 80 pieces, corps-de-ballet of 800, unique lighting and the distinguished guest artist, Carrie Jacobs-Bond, beloved American composer of many songs including
"At The End Of A Perfect Day"

and "I Love You Truly." Will J.
Harris, nationally known producer of spectacles, has accepted the assignment of supervising the show.

Many daytime attractions are scheduled for Cascades Festival Week at Jackson. Heading the list is the 15th annual exhibition of the Michigan Gladiolus Society, which will hold forth Aug. 15, 16 and 17
in the auditorium of the Jackson fair grounds.

The Cascades Festival is sponsored by Greater Jackson Association, a non-profit organization dedicated to community advancement.
The first festival in 1938 attracted 42,000 persons. The second annual festival in 1939 drew 74,500 persons. All who have seen one of the performances say that within a few years the spectacle will be numbered among the greatest attractions in the United States.

How are you going to ear-tag a rabbit without ears? That is what Warren Shapton is thinking as he contemplates the funny looking bunny shown above. It was taken recently in one of the box traps at the Rose Lake wildlife experiment station maintained by the conservation department near East Lansing. About a year ago this animal must have got too close to a mower in one of the hayfields. The relationship of farming practices to wildlife is being studied at the experiment station. Since the beginning of the mowing season investigations of hay-field mortality of pheasants and rabbits has been in full swing.
